attempts at character assassination have distorted the public perception of what these labels mean and how they are used. The following explanation is presented clarify the terms and their usage. CTheism address the issue of belief. For any claim about the existence of a god, theists are individuals who accept that this claim is true. One way of stating this is that the theist possesses the positive belief that this god claim is true. CAtheism literally means "without theism". An atheist is someone who does not accept, as true, claims about the existence of a god. This does not necessarily mean that atheists actively believe that no gods exist. CConsidering the claims regarding the existence of a god, there are two possible claims: C- God exists C- God does not exist CFor either claim, there are two positions one can take with regard to belief: C- belief or acceptance of the claimC- disbelief or rejection of the claimCFor claim number 1 (God exists), the theist's position is one of belief, while the atheist's position is one of disbelief. CFor claim number 2 (God does not exist), the theist's position is one of disbelief, while atheists can hold either position. CSome atheists actively believe that no god exists while others hold that neither
